- the research fellow can contribute to the development of new knowledge, new theories, methods, interpretations and forms of documentation in the subject area
- the research fellow can deal with complex academic issues and challenge established knowledge and practice in the subject area
- the research fellow can identify the project's main phases and manage complex artistic projects
- the research fellow is familiar with project work as a work method in artistic research

Work method

- Workshop-based seminar with discussions in small groups, lectures and presentations. The research fellows are given an opportunity to discuss their own projects in detail.

The group workshops: Groups of 4-5 research fellows work together, with the aim of strengthening a particular aspect in each of the fellows' project. Each fellow will lead the group for a session of 90 minutes. During this session the fellow brings forward a particular challenge or aspect of his/her project, inviting the group to respond. The format and length of this presentation is up to the fellow. The group works together on developing this aspect, moderated by the fellow. The same groups are kept for all workshop sessions. The fellows are free to choose the topics for their respective session.

The workshop is a good opportunity to discuss your project with other fellows extensively. We strongly advise all fellows to invite the group to take part in a discussion, rather than presenting the research project for 90 minutes.

All fellows must submit a 250 word abstract of their projects and the research issues they plan to discuss in the group session. Deadline: August 31st
